BRIGHT & BRILLIANT

When marble became too costly in the mid-15th century, Venetian tilers reused marble remnants in their terraces, hence giving rise to terrazzo in Venetian pavements. Since then, terrazzo is favoured for numerous famous Venetian architectures and became an association of prestige, elegance and nobility.

In the picturesque Italian region of Tuscany, an intense grey-hued stone with dazzling blue reflections clings to the slopes of the Apuan Alps. This metamorphic rock is where Amodh Stone takes its inspiration from, resulting in a deep blue-grey stone that becomes the perfect partner for all kinds of modern installation.

Amodh Stone is noted for its tone-on-tone shades and delicate veins with a hint of light grey. With its brushed finishing and striking hues, Amodh Stone looks as marvellous in wide open settings as it does in interior spaces.

LOFTY CONCEPTS

The Loft collection is a derivation from the aesthetics of modern lofts where open spaces and industrial decor elements become the main characteristics of the homes.

By merging the raw and rough finishing of cement with a natural surface, Loft successfully brings the essence of urban living concepts into a single tile collection.

Loft is produced as a "monocottura" tile, which translates as "single-fired" in Italian, where the process of shaping, glazing and firing is done simultaneously to create a vitrified tile that's highly durable and versatile.

RICH TAPESTRY

This collection softly blends one pattern with another to effortlessly create different looks in the same room. Imagined by design duo of Raw Edges, to seem as if it was made out of rolls of colourful patterns that rest on the raw tiles, Tape produces various style combinations. The design comprises a base tile with a slight, chalky effect pattern and a range of six patterns on a matte surface.
